Bloomberg: Saving Lives as Architects of the Heart

Our structural heart portfolio aims to give doctors and patients a broad set of choices that best suit each diagnosis, and also offer non-invasive surgical techniques for some patients when traditional surgeries are too risky. We are a leader in repairing holes in the heart as well as repairing the mitral valve, often without open-heart surgery.

Building for Sustainable Growth

We’ve been refining the ideal mix of selling in the right markets, with the right products, at the right time. Strong returns from our consistent investments in research and development, plus the promise of more products to come have put us in a product pipeline sweet spot – with plenty of high-profile results. Learn more about how we are focused on delivering long-term sustainable growth.

PRODUCT NEWS

HeartMate 3 Offers New Hope

Our HeartMate 3 Left Ventricular Assist Device received approval from the FDA as a destination therapy for people living with advanced heart failure. This is life-changing for people with end-stage heart failure. Physicians can now offer our HeartMate 3 system to patients not eligible for a heart transplant – allowing them to live with their device for the rest of their lives.

FreeStyle LibreLink App FDA Approved

A new iPhone app just made diabetes management simple for people living in the U.S. The FreeStyle LibreLink app enables users to hold their iPhone near their FreeStyle Libre or FreeStyle Libre 14 Day sensor to instantly capture and view their real-time glucose levels, assess their eight-hour glucose history, and see a directional arrow indicating how their glucose is changing.

INNOVATION

Innovative Path for Chronic Pain

An alarming rise in opioid abuse has brought a new focus on non-drug treatment approaches for chronic pain, and we’ve taken the lead in developing life-changing technologies that let patients manage their own treatments. Learn how our industry-leading neurostimulation therapy, Dorsal Root Ganglion stimulation, is helping to transform lives.
